Background

United Molasses Group Limited is a non-trading parent company of a group of businesses focused on the global trading and marketing of vegetable oils, molasses and related products and the storage of bulk liquids (the United Molasses Group) and its ultimate parent is W&R Barnett Holdings Limited.

This is our fifth year of producing Modern Slavery statements for entities within our group, with the most recent statements being prepared for signature on 15th January 2021 for the period 1st August 2019 to 31st July 2020. These statements are published in accordance with the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and they set out the steps taken by the United Molasses Group during the financial year ending 31st of July 2020 to seek to prevent modern slavery in its business and supply chains.

During FY 19/20 a new Anti-Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy was developed which has now been issued. These policies have been made available within our staff handbook, and provide a safe mechanism for whistleblowing. It also reinforces the need for effective systems and controls which seek to ensure modern slavery is not taking place anywhere in our own business. Relevant policies can be made available to third parties on request.

Training

The purpose of the training is to ensure that our employees have an understanding of modern slavery which may occur in our business or supply chains. Modern Slavery training has been rolled out to a number of subsidiaries of United Molasses Group Limited and it is our intention that all new starters of the business will be given training during their induction day. Prior to approving the FY 19/20 statement, the UM Group board received further training on the MSA.

United Molasses Group Limited remains fully committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chain or in any part of our business or its supply chains which fall within the scope of the group divisions audit sample.
